Chapter 1 by Feyre Archeron

If I could trade places with anyone. Who would it be? Would it be one of my best friends? Or maybe a famous person. None of them I would want to trade places with. The person that is on my mind, is one of my most important people in my life. The person I would trade places with is Austin Mahone. Why because he is my role model, and he is really important to me. If anything happened to him it would effect my life.

One of the reasons I want to trade places with him is that he has an Amazing voice. He can sing any note on the scale(except for the really really high notes). He is the most amazing singer of all time for me. I want his voice, I unfortunately can sing just not like him. He has a very soothing voice, it can calm a single room when he starts to sing.

Another reason I want to trade places with him is because he is famous. I have always wanted to be famous. I wanted the money, the fame, all the attention, being known, and having people care about me and not just blow me off because in not like them I'm different.

He gets all the attention now the world. He has people from China who come all the way to New York just to see him preform for about two to three hours. I want to be noticed for my talents not for what I look like or who I am. I want to feel loved like Austin is loved by all of his fans.
